ARGUMENT

I.

PETITIONER HAS NOT SATISFIED HIS BURDEN OF PROVING ACTUAL INNOCENCE

As noted in our motion to dismiss, a jury found petitioner guilty of assault by means of force likely to produce great bodily injury within the meaning of Penal Code section 245(a)(1), and found true allegations that petitioner personally inflicted great bodily injury within the meaning of Penal Code sections 12022.7(a) and 1203(e)(3). Citing Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 298, 327 (1995), petitioner contends that the AEDPA's statute of limitations should not apply to him because of he is "actually innocent" of the great bodily injury allegation under Penal Code section 1203(e)(3). Opp. at 2.

The Supreme Court has not decided whether there is an actual innocence exception to the AEDPA's statute of limitations. In Majoy v. Roe, 296 F.3d 770, 776 (9th Cir. 2002), the Ninth Circuit noted without deciding that a sufficient showing of actual innocence might override the statute of limitations. The court held that, if such an exception exists, a petitioner must establish that "it is more likely than not that no reasonable juror would have found petitioner guilty beyond a reasonable doubt." Id. (quoting Schlup, 513 U.S. at 327). "To be credible, such a claim requires petitioner to support his allegations of constitutional error with new reliable evidence - whether it be exculpatory scientific evidence, trustworthy eyewitness accounts, or critical physical evidence - that was not presented at trial." Schlup, 513 U.S. at 324. Further, "actual innocence' means factual innocence, not mere legal insufficiency." Bousley v. United States, 523 U.S. 614, 623 (1998). The Ninth Circuit has interpreted Schlup to mean that even if the evidence is not newly discovered, it must be newly presented, i.e., evidence that was not introduced to the jury at trial. Griffin v. Johnson, 350 F.3d 956, 961-963 (9th Cir. 2003).

Petitioner has not presented any new evidence of his actual innocence. Rather, he merely cites the decision in People v. Lewis, 120 Cal. App. 4th 837, 853 (2004), in support of his claim. Opp. at 3. Lewis held that "willfulness" is an element of Penal Code section 1203(e)(3), but not of Penal Code section 12022.7(a). Lewis, 120 Cal. App. 4th at 853. Petitioner argues that the trial court's instruction to the jury in his case—that the elements of section 1203(e)(3) were the same as those of section 12022.7(a)—was therefore erroneous. Petitioner contends that if the jury would have been properly instructed as to the willfulness element of section 1203(e)(3), it would have found the allegation not true because the prosecution did not argue that petitioner "willfully" inflicted great bodily injury. Petitioner asserts that he is thus actually innocent of the allegation, and that his failure to comply with the AEDPA's statute of limitations should accordingly be excused.

In order to show actual innocence, however, a petitioner must present new, factual evidence in support of his claim. A new principle of law, legal insufficiency, or the lack of argument by a prosecutor does not meet this definition. Accordingly, assuming arguendo that there is an actual innocence exception to the statute of limitations, petitioner has failed to meet the high standard required to override the statute. The petition should therefore be dismissed for failure to comply with the AEDPA's statute of limitations.

II.

PETITIONER HAS FAILED TO ESTABLISH THAT THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS SHOULD RUN FROM THE DATE LEWIS WAS DECIDED

Alternatively, petitioner argues that the AEDPA's statute of limitations did not begin to run until the date Lewis was decided, making the instant petition timely. Petitioner asserts that Lewis addressed a claim "so novel that its legal basis [was] not reasonably available to counsel." Opp. at 5. For this reason, petitioner contends, the legal principle set forth in Lewis constitutes the "factual predicate" of his claim within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 2244(d)(1)(D).

As we noted in our motion to dismiss, however, the Ninth Circuit has previously rejected an identical argument in Shannon v. Newland, 410 F.3d 1083 (9th Cir. 2005). The court noted that "[i]f a change in (or clarification of) state law, by a state court, in a case in which [the petitioner] was not a party, could qualify as a 'factual predicate,' then the term 'factual' would be meaningless." Id. at 1088. Thus, under the authority of Shannon, petitioner is not entitled to calculate the AEDPA's one-year statute of limitations from the date Lewis was decided. The petition should accordingly be dismissed as untimely.
